This is a permanent method of removal. The hair may grow again but will be finer and less. Except cost, everything goes in favor of laser hair removal from bikini area. In respect of treatment, the current view is that, in the disease model the alcoholicaddict is portrayed as someone who has no control over hisher behaviour and hence requires treatment to recover. This is often viewed as engendering feelings of helplessness and encouraging an abnegation of responsibility. In contrast the current view of treatment is that in order for recovery to occur the client needs to take responsibility for hisher behaviour and to be empowered to change. Moreover rather than enforced abstinence the client should have a choice of possible outcomes ie abstinence, reduction in consumption or controlled drinking, so the client is made to feel greater ownership of hisher recovery and is more motivated to succeed.

Interestingly the research suggests that most subjects given a choice of outcomes still end up abstinent, however having a choice of outcomes has the effect of increasing motivation.
